Comm-Works Announces VoiceRite Partnership

MINNEAPOLIS – 10/21/2008 - Comm-Works, a leading provider of technology and infrastructure solutions for large corporations and government agencies, announced today it has entered into a partnership agreement with VoiceRite, Inc., developer of Retail Connect, a robust, feature-rich software application designed for enterprises with multiple branch or store locations. The Retail Connect solution for Cisco's Unified Communications platform offers retailers the unique ability to integrate their phone systems into their existing business processes to achieve superior customer service, gain operational efficiencies, and provide better management visibility.

"We see VoiceRite as a strategic fit to our network of products and services," said Al Lampe, chief executive officer of Comm-Works, "It enhances our capabilities to better serve our customers who have diverse telecom needs."

"Given the type and size of customers that we are targeting with Retail Connect, we recognized the importance of having a partner that could deliver and support the solution on a large scale," said Marc Thomas, president of VoiceRite. "By packaging VoiceRite's application with Comm-Works' nationwide deployment and support capabilities, retailers and banks now have a 'one stop shop' for this powerful communications solution that has proven results in generating higher revenues, reducing costs, and improving customer satisfaction."

As a VoiceRite Partner, Comm-Works is supplementing its deployment and ongoing support capabilities by providing customers with advanced voice applications, resulting in streamlined efficiencies and improved customer service. Retail Connect is now available through the Comm-Works sales force.
